

As of July 15, 2021

1. A Scandinavian book you've been meaning to read

Considering - Maja Lunde, Vigdis Hjorth, or Simon Stranger

2. An unplanned or impromptu Scandinavian read

 Smoke Screen by Jørn Lier Horst and Thomas Enger \(translated from the Norwegian by Megan Turney\)

3. A book by a new-to-you Scandinavian author

Considering - Terapeuten by Helene Flood

4. A Scandinavian book from a favorite genre

 The Snowman by Jo Nesbø \(translated from the Norwegian by Don Bartlett\)

5. A prize-winning Scandinavian book

In progress - The Silver Road by Stina Jackson \(translated from the Swedish to the Norwegian\)

6. A book originally written in a language other than Norwegian, Swedish, or Danish that takes place in Scandinavia

 The Mercies by Kiran Millwood Hargrave

7. A book set in a Nordic country you would like to visit or revisit

Considering - Book set in Iceland

8. A Nordic book you chose for the cover

Considering - A Danish or Swedish book

9. A Nordic book in a genre you don't normally read

Considering - Short story collection Winter Stories by Ingvild Rishøi \(translated from the Norwegian by Diane Oatley\)

10. A buddy read or group read (in real life or virtually) of a Nordic book

 Jeg vet hvor du bor by Unni Lindell

★ Bonus 1: A prompt from a previous year's challenge

 Pakkis by Khalid Hussain \(translated from the Norwegian by Claudia Berguson and Ingeborg Kongslien\)

 By the Fire: Sami Folktales and Legends by Emilie Demant Hatt \(translated from the Danish by Barbara Sjøholm\)

★ Bonus 2: A book by a Nordic author you've enjoyed before

 Hekneveen by Lars Mytting